

Workforce Australia - Transition to Work

Do you know a young person looking for work?
Transition to Work employment service can help.

What is Transition to Work?

Workforce Australia - Transition to Work (TtW) helps young people aged 15-24 years into work or education. It focuses on young people having difficulty transitioning from school to further education or employment. Participants receive intensive, pre-employment support to develop practical skills to get a job, connect with education or training, find local job opportunities and connect with relevant local community services.

What assistance do young people receive?

Participants will receive assistance that focuses on helping them gain the skills and experience they need to achieve their goals, including:

- developing practical skills to get a job
- connecting with education or training
- finding and participating in work experience or internships
- identifying employment opportunities in the local area
- connecting with relevant local community services.

“I honestly feel like a different person, I feel more organised, I feel more confident in speaking with people, I'm learning how to save money and manage a budget a lot better! I honestly just feel like a better person!”

Who is eligible for Transition to Work?

To participate in Transition to Work, young people must be aged 15 to 24.

A young person's eligibility to participate will also depend on whether they:

- have a Year 12 certificate or Certificate III
- are Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander,
- have been employed within the last 6 months,
- are receiving an income support payment such as Youth Allowance, or not getting any payments,
- not already participating in another employment service, such as Workforce Australia Services.

Talk to a Transition to Work Provider to find out if you're eligible.

“For me the mental health thing that they were doing was something really helpful that they did. Because of that I was having a lot of trouble re-writing things because I have a really bad habit of second guessing myself and thinking I'm not doing the job. So, trying to get help from mental health probably really helped with that.”
