

Australian Government

ParentsNext

What to expect

What to expect from your ParentsNext consultant

Your ParentsNext consultant is there to help you build your confidence, develop your skills and access local services.

Your consultant will:

- Treat you with respect, and offer advice based on your life situation and your plans for the future
- Explain what is expected from you while you take part in ParentsNext
- Help you work out what you want to do and plan the steps needed to get you there
- Work with you to create a Participation Plan (outlining study and work goals)
- Support you to access local services (e.g. training, work readiness skills, counselling services.)
- Meet with you at least every three months to review your progress and your Participation Plan.

What's expected from you

You are asked to:

- Attend quarterly meetings with your consultant either in-person or by phone
- Sign the Participation Plan developed with your consultant
- Do the agreed activities in your Participation Plan and report on your progress
- Tell your consultant about any changes in your situation or goals
- Treat ParentsNext consultants with respect.

For more information go to dese.gov.au/parentsnext