

Australian Government

ParentsNext

Reporting on your progress

When taking part in ParentsNext, you may need to report on your activities.

Your ParentsNext consultant will tell you what to report on and your reporting days.

You will be asked to report separately to Centrelink and to ParentsNext—you can report by phone or online.

IMPORTANT

To keep getting Parenting Payment it's important to report on the days specified by your consultant. If you don't your payment may be affected.

If something happens and you can't report on the day, tell your consultant as soon as possible to prevent your payment being affected. You may also need to talk to Centrelink.

Online reporting

You can report to Centrelink through the myGov website or Express Plus Centrelink mobile app. You can report to ParentsNext through the Job Seeker app.

Your consultant can help you if you need help setting up a myGov account or linking apps to your myGov account.

Centrelink reporting

Report your income and confirm that you have met the requirements in your Participation Plan.

ParentsNext reporting

Confirm you have attended the activities in your Participation Plan.

Tips for ParentsNext activity reporting

If you can't report online, you can phone your consultant on your reporting day and they will help you with reporting.

You can sign up to get reminders by SMS, through the Job Seeker app, or by email. Ask your consultant for more information.

You can add your family commitments to the calendar in the Job Seeker app or tell your consultant, so they can schedule activities that fit in with your family life.

For more information go to dese.gov.au/parentsnext